

HPAT – Ireland 2009 Candidate Performance

HPAT – Ireland candidates received a score for each of the three test sections (Logical Reasoning and Problem Solving; Interpersonal Understanding; and Non-verbal Reasoning). The maximum score that can be achieved for each section is 100.

A candidate's overall score is the total of the three scale section scores. The maximum possible score is 300. The graph below provides information about the distribution of candidate scores for the 2009 sitting of HPAT – Ireland. The score is on the x axis, and the number of candidates who achieved that score is provided on the y axis.

HPAT – Ireland 2009 Percentiles

In addition to receiving an HPAT – Ireland score, HPAT – Ireland 2009 candidates also received a percentile to provide information about how well they performed against all candidates who sat HPAT – Ireland in 2009.

The graph below provides information about the percentile for each HPAT – Ireland 2009 score. If a candidate received an overall HPAT – Ireland score of 131 they would be at the 21st percentile. This means that they have done as well as or better than 21% of the 2009 HPAT – Ireland candidates. If a candidate received an overall score of 180 this would mean that they were at the 90th percentile. This means that they have done as well as or better than 90% of all HPAT – Ireland 2009 candidates.

